Thick Flo is a modified food starch derived from tapioca. It is a cook-up starch that exhibits good resistance to heat, acid, and shear. It imparts this tolerance to a food product along with relatively good freeze/thaw stability and the desirable bland taste associated with tapioca starches. Thick Flo imparts a smooth, heavy bodied, short texture to food products. These attributes can be achieved and maintained under conditions of high heat, shear and low temperature storage. The versatility offered by Thick Flo allows the food processor to take advantage of its bland flavour and delicate mouth-feel in a wide range of food products.
